Activity: Museum of Brands Special Edition Brand Bingo

Bingo is a popular game with all ages due to its simple rules, prizes and fun and social aspects. Fun fact: Bingo used to be called 'beano' because they scored with beans - which now could be coins, buttons, tokens or even chocolates (you decide!). Our Brand Bingo is played on a scorecard (made up of 25 squares), the goal is to get 5 squares in a row, a column or a diagonal line first!

Modern bingo was created by Edwin Lowe in the 1920s. Originally players would shout 'beano', but apparently one of Lowe's friend shouted 'bingo' one day by accident and it stuck. Bingo first appeared in the UK in the 1960s and been popular ever since.

Did you know that Bingo has its own National Day? The National BingoDay is on 27 June. Celebrate it with our Special Edition Brand Bingo.

What you will need:

- Coloured printer
- Pencil, scissors
- something to draw the Bingo cards from (bowl, bag)
- Bingo chips/coins/buttons (25 per person)

How to:

- Print as many scorecards as needed
- Go through the brands that will be called out with the participants
- Choose a caller who will be the Brand Bingo facilitator
- Cut and mix the brands from the first page - use a bowl to fold them all into
- Use chips, coins or buttons to mark your score or use a pen to cross them out

Have fun and good luck! Let's see who gets the first Bingo of the Game!
