Activity: Chocolate Edition Brand Bingo

Bingo is a popular game for all ages, as it has simple rules, you can win prizes, and it's a chance to have fun with friends!

Fun fact: Bingo used to be called 'Beano' because they scored with beans. Now, people use coins, buttons, tokens or even chocolates (you decide!) to keep score. Our Brand Bingo is played on a scorecard (made up of 25 squares). The goal is to be the first to get 5 squares in a row or a column!

What you will need:

- Colour printer
- Pencil
- Scissors
- Something to draw the Bingo cards from (a bowl or a bag)
- Bingo chips/coins/buttons (25 per person)

How to:

- Print one scorecard per player.
- Cut out the brands from the first page - fold them and place them all into your bowl or bag. The caller will choose them at random. Shake it up to mix them.
- Choose a caller to be the Brand Bingo facilitator (this person will be reading out the brands). The caller can participate in the game too!
- Read out the list of brands, so the participants know what to listen for.
- The caller will pick the cards out of the bag and call out the name. When a brand on your card is called, use your chips to cover it or use a pen to cross them out.
- The first person to get 5 in a row or a column shouts 'Bingo!' and wins the game.

Have fun and good luck! Let's see who gets the first bingo of the game!
