

MUSEUM of BRANDS

- Play-Doh, a popular stocking filler, was originally created as a spot cleaner for walls
- KFC is such a popular Christmas lunch option in Japan that you have to make a reservation months in advance
- Transformers were the best-selling toys of Christmas 1984, the year the Museum opened!

Step into a world of nostalgic holiday magic at Notting Hill's Museum of Brands and celebrate a Brand-tastic Christmas in the home of brands, advertising and design.

Get the festivities going with a themed vintage cocktail, and dive into a collection filled with era-specific toys, seasonal displays, and iconic ads that evoke the spirit of Christmases past. Continue the party cheer with drinks, dancing, canapés or seated dining in our Brands Hall, surrounded by a collection packed with everything from Boots to Barbies, and Bailey's.

No matter the budget, let our dedicated events team take the stress of Christmas planning away and create an unforgettable festive experience for you and your guests. We offer seasonal menus from a range of caterers, or you can book the venue on its own with your preferred suppliers. Immerse yourself in the joyous ambiance of the Museum of Brands this Christmas, and book a site visit today.
